The Invention Of Love Tom

The Invention of Love is a 1997 play by Tom Stoppard portraying the life of poet A. E. Housman, focusing specifically on his personal life and love for a college classmate. The play is written from the viewpoint of Housman, dealing with his memories at the end of his life, and contains many classical allusions. The Invention of Love won both the Evening Standard Award and the New York Drama Critics Circle Award. Considered by many to be Stoppard's finest play, it has been called "esoteric". In fa

" The Invention of Love is a parade ground for Stoppard's talents and for his tics. It is full of interesting material but it is too busy and sometimes repetitious. It has wonderfully funny phrases, but from time to time, even though the Oxford establishment is scarcely revered, the chortle of the high table rings out."
